

Curriculum Vitae – Georgios Mavrommatis

Dr. Georgios Mavrommatis was born and brought up in Komotini, NE Greece. He studied Marketing (BA), Pedagogic (BA), Political Sciences and History (Ph.D.) and music (Ottoman classical). Since 2009, he is an Assistant Professor in Intercultural and Minority Education at the Department of Education Sciences in Early Childhood, Democritus University of Thrace.

His main research interests are on the education of minority and migrant children (especially Muslims and Roma), focusing in the fields of education policy, bilingualism, development of teaching material, school attendance, human rights, combating racism and teacher's training.

During the 1995-2004 period, he worked as a Researcher (Field Research) at various institutes, among which are the European Monitoring Centre on Racism Xenophobia and Anti-Semitism, the Greek Ministry of Education and the OSCE-ODIHR. From 2004 to 2009, he worked as a Primary Education Teacher, teaching Greek to Turkish-speaking minority Muslim pupils, in minority elementary schools of Thrace, while during the 1997 – 2014 period, he worked as an executive in the “Education of the Muslim Minority Children in Thrace” program.

From 2008 and on, he works as a consultant and trainer (seminars and in-course training addressed to primary and secondary education teachers) on intercultural education, bilingualism and language policy etc.