

Curriculum Vitae – Zsofia Windisch

Zsofia Windisch studied International Relations at the Corvinus University of Budapest. Her special scientific focus has been Turkey and people of Turkish background in Europe. In 2006, she was an Erasmus student at the Middle East Technical University (METU) in Ankara, Turkey and completed a Master's thesis about Islamophobia. Moreover, between 2010 and 2013, she worked as a study assistant in the Department of Education, Islamic Religious Education at the University of Vienna. In 2015, she decided to extend her work and research migration and asylum. For this reason, she completed the university course 'Social work to integrate refugees' at the Danube University Krems in Austria. She is currently enrolled as a PhD student at the Faculty of Catholic Theology at the University of Vienna, where she is planning to write a thesis on the topic 'Religion in work with refugees'.
